One of the better ones in Lau Pa Sat is Satay Power Stall No 6, which I have patronising since the late ‘90s. When I am in the area, that is where I would usually go with friends after work; we would order sets according to how many of us are dining. The prawns are quite delicious—they put a bit of salt to finish and it is so good. We also add on a couple of babat (beef tripe) to share.
